Creating and promoting company profiles on B2B platforms, looking for both in-house projects and outsourcing opportunities, Business relations and collaboration with other IT companies and Digital Marketing agencies

Head of Sales and Marketing at 2 of company's biggest projects (USA and Sri Lanka)

As our company was very small(11 in-house developers and 2 Project Managers), I was in charge of different aspects and roles.

For the first 5-6 months I was in charge mainly of creating and developing company profiles on different B2B platforms (Clutch, YouTeam, Goodfirms, Sortlist), also looking for outsourcing opportunities for our developers.

We closed a big client from USA (food delivery startup) and I was managing marketing and sales on different stages of this project, I was also writing all the texts for the website and application; putting together the presentation for investors and potential partners; and later on looking for and contacting all the restaurants and peoples who were supposed to sell the food on out platform.

At the same time we started working on our in-house project with partners from Sri-Lanka, developing classified advertising website in Sri-Lanka. I was performing Project Manager duties on this project as well, I was working on all the categories and sub-categories, search filters, writhing an Excel document for the developers with all the information and search filters.

I was in charge of Marketing and Sales as well.

I was in the Management team on both of this projects.

Also, I was performing interviews with potential developers both in-house and freelancers
